A Case Series of Children With 2019 Novel Coronavirus Infection: Clinical and Epidemiological Features

J. H. Cai, J. Xu, D. J. Lin, Z. Yang, L. Xu, Z. H. Qu, et al.

Clinical Infectious Diseases 2020 Vol. 71 Issue 6 Pages 1547-1551

Accession Number: WOS:000582709700030 DOI: 10.1093/cid/ciaa198

We first described the 2019 novel coronavirus infection in 10 children occurring in areas other than Wuhan. The coronavirus diseases in children are usually mild and epidemiological exposure is a key clue to recognize pediatric case. Prolonged virus shedding is observed in respiratory tract and feces at the convalescent stage.

Supplementary table 1 | Equations describing the 'Likely water' cluster hull and cluster overlaps in the multidimensional feature-space.

These equations describe the 'Likely water' cluster in the multidimensional feature-space. By definition, part of this cluster contain pixels that are not water, and request additional processing steps to be properly assigned. The method section provides details about the usages of this equations within the expert system classifier.

摘要
In vitro transcribed (IVT) mRNA has recently come into focus as a potential new drug class to deliver genetic information. Such synthetic mRNA can be engineered to transiently express proteins by structurally resembling natural mRNA. Advances in addressing the inherent challenges of this drug class, controlling the translational efficacy and immunogenicity of the IVTmRNA, provide the basis for a broad range of potential cancer immunotherapies and infectious disease vaccines have entered clinical development. Meanwhile, emerging novel in vivo delivery of IVT mRNA to replace or supplement proteins, IVT mRNA-based generation of pluripotent stem cells and genome engineering using IVT mRNA-encoded designer nucleases. This Review provides a comprehensive overview of the current state of mRNA-based drug Objective. To determine the presence of mesenchymal progenitor cells (MPCs) in human articular cartilage.

Methods. Primary cell cultures established from normal and osteoarthritic (OA) human knee articular cartilage were analyzed for the expression of CD166, cell surface markers whose coexpression with CD133 identifies mesenchymal stem cells (MSCs) in bone marrow stroma. The potential of cartilage cells to differentiate to adipogenic, osteogenic, and chondrogenic capable of chondrocytic differentiation and formed cartilage tissue in micromass pellet cultures.

findings indicate that in adult human articular cartilage, the frequency is increased as implicating the capacity of a progenitor cell population that these progenitor cells might be involved in the pathogenesis of arthritis.

mRNA-based therapeutics —
developing a new class of drugs

Ugur Sahin^{1,2}, Katalin Karikó^{2,3} and Özlem Türeci¹

Abstract | In vitro transcribed (IVT) mRNA has recently come into focus as a potential new drug class to deliver genetic information. Such synthetic mRNA can be engineered to transiently express proteins by structurally resembling natural mRNA. Advances in addressing the inherent challenges of this drug class, particularly related to controlling the translational efficacy and immunogenicity of the IVTmRNA, provide the basis for a broad range of potential applications. mRNA-based cancer immunotherapies and infectious disease vaccines have entered clinical development. Meanwhile, emerging novel approaches include in vivo delivery of IVT mRNA to replace or supplement proteins, IVT mRNA-based generation of pluripotent stem cells and genome engineering using IVT mRNA-encoded designer nucleases. This Review provides a comprehensive overview of the current state of mRNA-based drug technologies and their applications, and discusses the key challenges and opportunities in developing these into a new class of drugs.

The concept of nucleic acid-encoded drugs was conceived over two decades ago when Wolff *et al.*¹ demonstrated that direct injection of in vitro transcribed access the nucleus to be transcribed into RNA, and their functionality depends on nuclear envelope breakdown during cell division. In addition, IVT mRNA based ther

The relationship between sleep quality and fibromyalgia symptoms

A. Andrade, G. T. Vilarino, S. M. Sieczkowska, D. R. Coimbra, G. G. Bevilacqua and R. D. K. Steffens

Journal of Health Psychology 2020 Vol. 25 Issue 9 Pages 1176-1186

Accession Number: WOS:000553450000003

DOI: 10.1177/1359105317751615

This study investigated the relationship between sleep quality and fibromyalgia symptoms in 326 patients. The Pittsburgh Sleep Quality Index was used to assess the presence of sleep disorders. Multivariate analysis of variance was performed to determine the influence of fibromyalgia symptoms on sleep quality. The prevalence of sleep disorders was 92.9 percent. Patients reported generalized pain (88.3%), memory failure (78.5%), moodiness (59%), excessive anxiety (77.5%), and concentration difficulties (69.1%). Patients with more symptoms reported poor sleep quality ($p < .05$; $d = .74$), and the total Pittsburgh Sleep Quality Index score correlated with the number of symptoms ($p < .01$). Sleep quality has an important association with fibromyalgia symptoms.

Abstract
Background: Although sleep hygiene education represents a promising approach for patients with poor sleep quality, little research has been devoted in understanding the sleep hygiene behavior and knowledge of working women. Purpose: The purpose of this study was to investigate the efficacy of a short-term sleep hygiene education program on working women with poor sleep quality.

s in the chest, restlessness, manic or depressive mood, nausea or vomiting, hiccups, gastric pain, and distension in the upper abdomen (Dunne, 2001). Since the parasympathetic modulation of both heart and gut by the vagus nerve, and since vagal stimulation of the gut can result in the vagal stimulation of the heart can result in decreased heart rate (Dunne, 2001), it is speculated that to some extent the pericardium meridian reflects the autonomic nervous modulation of the subject.

For example, the use of acupressure at the Neiguan (P6) point, the most frequently used point on the pericardium meridian, has been shown to lessen nausea and vomiting (Dunne, 1989a and b; Ho et al., 1989; De Aloysio and Penacchioni, 1992; Egan et al., 1997; Harmon et al., 2000). Because nausea and vomiting are associated with autonomic nervous activity (Morrow et al., 1992; Morrow et al., 1993), the autonomic nervous activity might be changed when acupressure is performed.

Power spectrum analysis is a useful non-invasive technique for the assessment of autonomic modulation of heart rate. Some diseases are associated with autonomic nervous activity, and the restoration of vagal modulation is a therapeutic goal.

Fears of second coronavirus outbreak hit global shares

Chapter 1

Share prices had gained in recent weeks amid hopes that the economy would rebound as authorities loosened restrictions put in place to try to slow the spread of the virus.(Bagheri et al., 2021; Silva et al., 2020)

Last week's surprise report showing US employers had restarted hiring in May helped to push the tech-heavy Nasdaq index to new highs(Haibo et al., 2020; Sharma et al., 2020).

But the recovery remains tentative. On Thursday, the US Labor Department reported that another 1.5 million people had filed new unemployment claims last week. More than 30 million continue to collect the benefits, it said.

摘要

BackgroundAlthough people of all ages are susceptible to the novel coronavirus infection, which is presently named "Coronavirus Disease 2019" (COVID-19), there has been relatively few cases reported among children. Therefore, it is necessary to understand the clinical characteristics of COVID-19 in children and the differences from adults. Case presentationWe report one pediatric case of COVID-19. A 14-month-old boy was admitted to the hospital with a symptom of fever, and was diagnosed with a mild form of COVID-19. The child's mother and grandmother also tested positive for SARS-CoV-2 RNA. However, the lymphocyte counts were normal. The chest computed tomography (CT) revealed scattered ground glass opacities in the right lower lobe close to the pleura and resorption after the treatment. The patient continued to test positive for SARS-CoV-2 RNA in the nasopharyngeal swabs and stool at 17days after the disappearance of symptoms. ConclusionThe present pediatric case of COVID-19 was acquired through household transmission, and the symptoms were mild. Lymphocyte counts did not significantly decrease. The RNA of SARS-CoV-2 in stool and nasopharyngeal swabs remained positive for an extended period of time after the disappearance of symptoms. This suggests that attention should be given to the potential contagiousness of pediatric COVID-19 cases after clinical recovery.

Human and novel coronavirus infections in children: a review

Rajapakse, N and Dixit, D

Jan 2 2021 | Jun 2020 (早期取閱) | PAEDIATRICS AND INTERNATIONAL CHILD HEALTH 41 (1) , pp.36-55

Coronaviruses, seven of which are known to infect humans, can cause a spectrum of clinical presentations ranging from asymptomatic infection to severe illness and death. Four human coronaviruses (hCoVs)-229E, HKU1, NL63 and OC43-circulate globally, commonly infect children and typically cause mild upper respiratory tract infections. Three novel coronaviruses of zoonotic origin ha' ... 顯示更多
